

MBS & TREASURY MARKETS

Daily Coverage. Industry Leading Perspective.

A message from Nickolas Inhelder:

We Make Home Happen.™

Our goal is simple:

To help every family we serve get to “Yes.”

Yes to the loan that unlocks the joy of home ownership.

Yes to the lending solution that meets every client’s unique needs and wants.

That’s why we dedicate our every resource to serve as your personal guide through the lending process, solving problems, building confidence. Aslan has access to every lending option leading to the purchase or refinance of a residential home loan.

This is more than work for us. It is our unique joy in this life to share our collective skill, creativity, and care to bring you and your family right to where you belong.

Let’s make home happen.

CONTACT ME TODAY

Nickolas Inhelder

Mortgage Broker, Aslan
Home Lending Corp

www.AslanHLC.com

P: (720) 446-8778

M: (858) 229-9533

nick@inhelderinvestments.com

1777 S. Harrison St.

Denver CO 80210

2037157 - CO, FL, TX, WY

The Day Ahead: Tired Friday For The Bond Market-- Especially MBS

The bond market has a lot on its mind after this past week of economic data and events.

Inflation quickly and increasingly looks like it may (finally) be turning the long-hoped-for corner. Timely employment metrics raise questions about labor market softening and Fed speakers are so eager to avoid jumping the gun on rate cuts after the Q1 inflation surprise that traders may wonder if they've moved from one side of the center to the other.

Nothing about today will change or inform any of that, it seems. We might have hoped that Import Prices would add to the disinflationary vibes, but alas, bonds actually lost ground after that (though not necessarily because of it. After Consumer Sentiment data also failed to inspire, it's clear that bonds are checked out for the week and the trades coming in are occurring for reasons that are unrelated to today's events.

