MBS Recap: Decent 2yr Auction, But No Major Inspiration For Bonds

Decent 2yr Auction, But No Major Inspiration For Bonds

MBS Recap | Matthew Graham | 3:06 PM

We've increasingly revisited the concept of the "inside day" recently and with 2 days down, we could actually shift gears and to an "inside week." In other words, both yesterday and today's trading ranges can be easily contained inside the trading range established last week. In fact, everything fits in last Tuesday's range, and we'd have to go back yet another week (to CPI/Fed week) to see any actual volatility. That's not a bad thing. It's just a thing. It will change eventually, but it didn't change today. The biggest market mover was Canadian CPI of all things--something we basically never watch or mention, but those are the lengths one must go to on inside weeks. Tomorrow's 5yr Treasury auction could be a bigger player than today's 2yr although the latter did help bonds hold the line without losing more ground.

Lock / Float Considerations

- This week's Treasury auction cycle and the implied technical resistance seen near 4.20% in 10yr yields make a case for a more risk-averse approach. Risk takers are liking the technical support seen at 4.29% last week and/or 4.27% over the past 2 sessions. All of the above is very "small picture." Big picture changes depend on additional, friendly inflation prints as well as a bit of cooling in other big ticket economic data.

- Ceiling/Support (can be used as "lock triggers")
 - o 4.57
 - o 4.49
 - o 4.35
 - o 4.30
- Floor/Resistance

 - o 4.19
