Uneventful Monday Despite AM Volatility

MBS Recap | Matthew Graham | 5:00 PM

Durable goods data made for a semblance of volatility this morning, with the core components resulting in a small rally at 8:30am. Bonds bounced back into weaker territory at 9:30am amid NYSE trade flows. There was another mini-rally and another mini-sell-off ultimately giving way to an extremely narrow range near unchanged levels for the rest of the day. MBS outperformed Treasuries by an amount that makes good logical sense on a Treasury auction week. All in all, it may as well have been a 3 day weekend.

Lock / Float Considerations

- Uneventful start to the new week. Not much data this week, but Treasury auction cycle connotes headwinds until Thursday, all other things being equal. Risk/reward is much lower than it will be in the next 2 weeks, but volatility can still occur in response to a few of the AM economic reports--Friday's PCE and Thursday's jobless claims being the most notable.
