KEY MORTGAGE

Better Balance, Finally

MBS Recap | Matthew Graham | 4:55 PM

In the context of the first 3 days of the week, bonds pulled off a miracle today. Most of the yield curve managed to remain in positive territory despite both of this morning's key economic reports coming in stronger than expected. Markets were definitely willing to trade that data as both reports garnered a pop in yields and volumes. Perhaps it was a saving grace that neither report was unequivocally terrible for bonds. Both had some "yeah buts" that helped balance the response. What's impressive is that bonds were finally willing to have a balanced response as opposed to selling first and asking questions later. All this having been said, the jury is out as to whether this means anything or was simply the way today's ball bounced.

- 11:57 AM Choppy, but broadly sideways and near stronger levels. MBS up 5 ticks (.16) and 10yr down 3.8bps at 4.201
- 01:42 PM A bit closer to the day's best levels. MBS up 7 ticks (.22) and 10yr down 4.9bps at 4.19
- 04:15 PM Off the best levels in the after hours session with MBS up only 3 ticks (.09) and 10yr down only 3bps at 4.208

Lock / Float Considerations

- While the bigger picture rate outlook remains data dependent (i.e. a super strong jobs report = higher rates and vice versa), consider the likelihood of significant election related volatility until further notice. As for Thursday's resilience, there will be a temptation to view this as some sort of technical ceiling for yields. While this can't be ruled out as a possibility, we'd advocate waiting for genuine motivation in the data or election outcome rather than technical analysis.

Technical/Trends in 10yr (why 10yr)

- Ceiling/Support (can be used as "lock triggers")
 - o 4.35
 - o 4.30
- Floor/Resistance
 - o 3.87
 - o 4.00
 - o 4.12
 - o 4.20
