No Whammies From Powell as Rates Rally on ISM Data

MBS Recap Matthew Graham | 4:32 PM

Bonds came away from this morning's economic data with a tailwind that helped turn losses into gains. The ISM Services PMI was the biggest contributor. In addition to headline PMI being much weaker than expected, the employment index was also lower than last month, and the price index was unchanged. The only thing bonds had left to fear on the day was Powell's afternoon Q&A, but there were no surprises and, thus, no reaction in rates. Lenders were free to reprice for the better if they hadn't done so before Powell. Despite the gains, trading levels continue hitting the same resistance marked by 10yr Treasury yields just under 4.20%.

Lock / Float Considerations

Bonds made it through the Thanksgiving trading week in the best possible shape relative to the incoming data. The rising rate trend from October was defeated 2 weeks ago and the initial sideways trajectory gave way to a modest recovery. Nonetheless, it continues to be up to incoming economic data to determine the next "real" move in rates. So far this week, data has merely helped rates hold near their lowest recent levels. The only major report left is Friday's jobs report.
