Very Low Volatility After Early Morning Rally

MBS Recap | Matthew Graham | 4:49 PM

Bonds were sideways to slightly weaker in the overnight session, but bounced back at 7am ET. The two most notable developments at the time were weak earnings from Wal-Mart and a comment from Bessent on the mix of Treasury issuance. While the former may be an easier thing to understand and write about, the latter served as the source of the bond rally. Bessent essentially said he wasn't in a hurry to add more longer-term debt relative to short-term debt, and that's good for things like mortgage rates, all other things being equal. It's also evident in the obvious yield curve disparity with 2yr yields higher on the day and 10yr yields lower.

Lock / Float Considerations

- Bonds are back in the stance of waiting for big ticket economic data which is in relatively short supply this week. Risk reward remains fairly neutral amid the lack of data. Friday morning's GDP PMI is an this week. Risk reward remains fairly neutral amid the lack of data. Friday morning's S&P PMI is an occasional market mover when it falls far enough from forecast. Apart from that, next week's PCE inflation data on Friday is the big to-do.
