Bonds Hold Morning Gains; No Reaction to Tariff Headlines

MBS Recap Matthew Graham | 4:45 PM

To be clear, markets reacted to tariff headlines yesterday evening when the news was that a court decision would block certain tariffs. But even before today's most relevant tariff headlines, markets had correctly sniffed out the outcome. In short, tariffs are back in effect pending further review by the court and even then, traders expect the administration to find ways around any attempted block. Bottom line, there was no reaction to today's headlines by the time they came out because markets traded the likelihood overnight. Tepid econ data and a well-received 7yr Treasury auction added mildly to the gains.

Lock / Float Considerations

Rates have managed to find support at recent high yields after spending most of May moving decisively higher. Prevailing momentum is sideways in a fairly narrow range in the bigger picture. Month-end trading can cause random volatility on Friday. It continues to be the case that a truly worthwhile rate rally will require sharply weaker economic data, a consistent failure of tariff-driven inflation to materialize, and/or a legitimate reason to expect lower Treasury issuance.
