Modestly Stronger After No Whammies From Powell

MBS Recap | Matthew Graham | 4:15 PM

Last week's press conference with Fed Chair Powell could be summed up as "more hawkish than the market expected." After being compounded by strong econ data on Thursday morning, the selling spree ran its course and we've been mostly sideways over the past 3 days. Today ended up being the best version of sideways with yields almost making it back to Thursday's closing levels. Most of the move happened after Powell finished a Q&A this afternoon. This suggests traders were relieved that he didn't reinforce the hawkish talking points from last week. All told, it wasn't a big move, but it was a friendly one nonetheless.
