Jobless claim counts continue to fall after the big pop seen 2 weeks ago. Continued claims aren't helping. GDP revised higher with a stronger final sales number, and core Durable Goods surging much higher than expected. There's really no good news for bonds in this morning's crop of econ data and the moderately weaker response is easy to reconcile.

MBS are down a quick eighth of a point and 10yr yields are up 3bps at 4.178.
