

The Day Ahead: Bleeding Subsides For Now, Headlines Helping But Bonds Remain Cautious

Tuesday's massive wave of bond-specific weakness still has the analytical community scratching its collective head. Our contacts are either saying nothing or telling us they're just as perplexed. So far this morning, there hasn't been any sort of repeat performance. Lower oil prices have helped bonds find their footing, but the move has relied on breaking news regarding the potential for the final text of the peace agreement to be drafted by tomorrow.

Paul E Smith

Owner, Main Street
Mortgage Company

www.texasmainstreet.com

P: (713) 528-1245

M: (713) 480-7385

3100 Richmond Ave
Houston TX 77098

MSMC NMLS 296814

Paul E Smith NMLS 193580

On the calendar front, the 2pm FOMC Minutes release is the only thing that seems like it might be relevant, but as a reminder, this is just a more detailed account of the meeting that took place 3 weeks ago, and we've heard plenty of Fed speakers clarify their outlook over those 3 weeks.