

MORTGAGE RATE WATCH

Daily Coverage. Industry Leading Perspective.

Mortgage Rates Just a Bit Higher After Last Week's Jump

The average top-tier 30yr fixed mortgage rate rose 0.08% last Friday after the jobs report came in much stronger than expected. Today added another 0.02% of upward movement. Today's level of 6.68% is the 3rd highest of the past 9 months.

Unlike Friday, there were no big-ticket economic reports driving volatility in rate markets. The only arguable cause and effect was seen earlier in the morning surrounding war-related headlines. These actually helped rates start the day lower than they otherwise would have.

As the week continues, investors will remain tuned in to war-related developments as well as an important inflation report on Wednesday morning (the Consumer Price Index or "CPI").

Jeff Diaz

Mortgage Loan Originator,
The Jeff Diaz Team -
Barrett Financial Group
L.L.C

thejeffdiazteam.com

P: (602) 777-7765

jeff@barrettfinancial.com

2701 E Insight Way
Chandler AZ 85297-8528
NMLS# 980070
Company NMLS# 181106

