

MORTGAGE RATE WATCH

Daily Coverage. Industry Leading Perspective.

Mortgage Rates Fall to Lowest Levels in a Week

Mortgage rates moved lower again today following another lower-than-expected reading on an inflation report. Yesterday's Consumer Price Index (CPI) had a bigger impact on the underlying bond market, but today's Producer Price Index (PPI) wasn't far behind.

Additionally, bonds did a better job of holding onto the improvement into the afternoon hours. This allowed mortgage lenders to drop rates even more than they did yesterday (0.06% today versus 0.05% yesterday). This takes the average top-tier 30yr fixed rate to 6.64% which is the lowest in just over a week.

Colin Powers

President, Waterville Mortgage

www.watervillemortgage.com

P: (732) 217-6000

M: (732) 687-0322

colin@watervillemortgage.com

157 Broad St
Red Bank NJ 07701
20521

