

Labor, Land, and Rising Costs Push Builder Confidence to 3 Year Lows

Builder sentiment took a meaningful step backward in September, with higher mortgage rates, rising construction costs and worsening labor shortages weighing on the market for newly built homes. The National Association of Home Builders (NAHB)/Wells Fargo Housing Market Index (HMI) fell three points to 32, matching September 2025 as the lowest level in over 3 years.

Breakdown of various component indices:

HMI Component	August	September	Change
Current sales conditions	39	35	-4
Sales expectations	43	37	-6
Prospective buyer traffic	23	23	Unchanged

“Buyer traffic has weakened across much of the country, largely because of rising mortgage rates,” said NAHB Chairman Bill Owens. Owens also pointed to higher material costs, rising gas and diesel prices and persistent labor shortages as ongoing challenges for builders.

NAHB Chief Economist Robert Dietz added that builders also reported difficulty finding available lots, with 42% rating current lot availability as poor and another 38% rating it as fair.

Sylvia Sanders

Loan Officer, C2 Financial |
Military Lending Pros | The
Sanders Team

www.sylviasanders.com

P: (760) 429-4470

M: (760) 429-4470

sylvia@sylviasanders.com

12230 El Camino Real #100
San Diego CA 92130

NMLS #633013 | CA DRE
02094109 | AZ MLO Lic 094848

NMLS #135622 | CA DRE
01821025 | FL OFR # MLD2635

Builders increased their use of pricing incentives in September. The share reporting price cuts rose to 38% from 35% in August, while the average price reduction remained at 6% for the sixth consecutive month. Sales incentives were also more common, with 66% of builders reporting their use, up from 63% in August and the highest share since December.

Region	August	September	Change
Northeast	44	39	-5
Midwest	45	44	-1
South	32	31	-1
West	27	28	+1