Another Decent Drop as Mortgage Rates Move Under 7.2%

Yesterday, it was a drop below 7.25%. Today, the 7.20% floor was broken. Mortgage rates have been on a tear over the past month and are now back to 7.17% for the average lender.

If there's one thing that deserves most of the credit for this bull run, it's the extreme bearishness in tech stocks. The NASDAQ is now down roughly 14% from the October highs and the drop perfectly coincides with the drop in bond yields and interest rates.

The road ahead is fairly simple: if tech continues causing panic in stocks, interest rates can continue to benefit. The caveat is that the benefit to rates has been getting smaller and smaller relative to the drama in stocks. This would also suggest that any miraculous bounce in stocks would likely prompt a similar correction in rates.

Economic data still matters as well. On that note, tomorrow brings the monthly jobs report, which should always be respected as a potential source of volatility.

Faramarz Moeen-Ziai
Branch Manager, FMZ Loans
fmzloans.com
P: (415) 377-1147 x____
M: (415) 377-1147
2987 College Ave
Berkeley CA 94705
342090
173855

FMZ LOANS
POWERED BY CORNERSTONE FIRST MORTGAGE, LLC
PREPARED • TRUSTED • PROVEN

EQUAL HOUSING OPPORTUNITY

© MBS Live, LLC. All rights reserved. This newsletter is a service of MBS Live.