Mortgage Applications Dip 2.3 Percent as Rates Bounced Back

Mortgage applications reversed course as mortgage rates moved higher for a second consecutive week. The Mortgage Bankers Association (MBA) reported a 2.3% decline in total application volume for the week ending November 13, 2026.

Purchase applications led the decline, falling 3% on a seasonally adjusted basis, while refinance applications decreased 2%. On an unadjusted basis, purchase activity was down 7% for the week.

Compared to year-ago levels, purchase applications remained 18% lower, while refinance activity was down 54%. The refinance share of total applications increased to 41.1% from 39.8%, while adjustable-rate mortgage applications accounted for 10.8% of activity.

MBA's Joel Kan attributed the pullback to rising rates. The average 30-year fixed rate in MBA's survey climbed to 7.35%, its highest level in three weeks. Kan also noted that FHA refinance applications increased nearly 7% despite the overall decline in refinance activity, helped by FHA rates running roughly 30 basis points below conforming rates.
