Complete Recap of Today's Market Activity

Fairly Steady After Glut of Low-Consequence Data

Market Summary: Thursday, August 28, 2025 - 11:14AM

This morning's economic calendar only looks robust on paper. While quarterly GDP results in numerous line items, they're not as important as they might sound. For instance, PCE prices are an important inflation index, but the version released with GDP applies to Q2 and is thus just revising already-released PCE data. Additionally, it is not capturing any of the July inflation that will be reported with tomorrow's monthly PCE. The same "stale" factor applies to everything in today's GDP release (this is why GDP revisions don't have nearly as much market movement potential as an initial release, which we won't get until October). Jobless Claims data rarely has a big impact and today is no exception. While Continued Claims recovered slightly, it wasn't a big enough bounce to be significant.

Market Movement Recap

09:29 AM Flat overnight and little changed since data. MBS down 1 tick (.03) and 10yr up less than half a bp at 4.24

Weekly claims continue to be boring.

Yields continue operating well within the post-NFP range, but with a friendlier trend since last week's Jackson Hole speech.

Mortgage Rates Hit Another 2025 Low

It continues to be the case that day-to-day changes in average are very small. Today was no exception in that regard. Nonetheless, today represents a technical "record low" for 2025 with average rates edging just slightly lower than those seen on August 22nd and 26th.

Our index (which tracks top tier, conventional 30yr fixed rates for ideal scenarios) is now 6.51%, the lowest it's been since October 3rd 2024 when it was 6.26%.

Virtually all of the recent improvement in rates followed the August 1st jobs report. Everything since August 4th has transpired in a relatively narrow range.

There was no new development that accounted for today's improvement--just a random drift that happened to work out in our favor.

Powell's Speech Greased The Skids For Rates to Slide to 2025 Lows

If you read nothing else below, read this: people are talking about stronger odds of a Fed rate cut in September. Some people assume this means mortgage rates would move lower after that potential rate cut. Those people are wrong, and there is memorable evidence from late 2024 when mortgage rates moved quickly higher from long term lows mere days after the Fed's September rate cu...
