Some Selling Pressure After Auction and Fed Minutes

Market Summary: Wednesday, October 8, 2025 - 4:58PM

There were no market-moving economic reports scheduled for today regardless of the government shutdown. That left the focus entirely on the afternoon events: the 1pm 10yr Treasury auction and the 2pm release of the Fed Minutes (a more detailed account of the Fed meeting 3 weeks ago). The auction was slightly weaker than expected, which accounted for most of the upward pressure in yields in the afternoon. The minutes didn't help (even if they didn't necessarily hurt). Notable comments included mention of a few members who would have been OK with no rate cut and a majority of members remaining concerned about inflation.

Market Movement Recap

09:27 AM	modestly stronger overnight and holding so far. MBS up 2 ticks (.06) and 10yr down 2.4bps at 4.103
12:01 PM	Near weaker levels. MBS up 1 tick (.03) and 10yr down 0.9bps at 4.118
01:03 PM	No major reaction to middle-of-the-road auction. 10yr down 1bp at 4.117 and MBS up 1 tick (.03)
01:59 PM	MBS are 1 tick lower (.03) and 10yr yields are 0.4bps higher at 4.131
02:40 PM	Slight additional selling after Fed Minutes. MBS down 3 ticks (.09) and 10yr up 0.6bps at 4.133

Weakest Levels Ahead of Fed Minutes

Bonds are losing ground and are now at the weakest levels of the day ahead of the Fed Minutes release.

MBS are 1 tick lower (.03) lower on the day, but 5 ticks below the AM highs. Some lenders published rates around the time of those highs and, as such, could be considering negative reprices.

10yr yields also just ticked into negative territory, but just barely. Bonds have generally been selling after the 10yr Treasury auction.

Mortgage Rates Remain Steady

technically ticked a hair lower today, but it's more accurate to view them as being broadly sideways. Some lenders issued improvements yesterday afternoon. Those lenders were closer to unchanged this morning.

As of this afternoon, several lenders have already issued slight rate increases due to weakness in the bond market.

Bonds dictate rates. Today, bonds took cues from two main events in the afternoon. The first was a scheduled auction of 10yr Treasuries. Auction demand was slightly weaker than expected. This pushes Treasury yields higher and Treasury yields correlate with mortgage rates.

An hour later, the Fed released the minutes from the last Fed meeting 3 weeks ago. The minutes painted a slightly less rate-friendly picture than was in place at the time. This created a bit of extra weakness in the bond market, but only by a barely detectable amount.

All told, the bonds that specifically pertain to mortgage rates were right at the same levels seen during the same time frame yesterday afternoon. In general, that will equate to mortgage rates being at the same levels as well.

Small Victory For Rates as Market Waits For Data

Contrary to mainstream notions regarding the Fed rate cut, mortgage rates moved sharply higher on Fed Day as well as the following day. Since then, they've been in a calm, sideways range, but managed to trickle to the lowest levels in that range by the end of this week. This is a logical outcome considering this week's bond market movement. 10yr Treasury yields (the most visible part of the bon...
