In-Range PM Weakness

Market Summary: Wednesday, February 25, 2026 - 8:31PM

Viewed under a microscope, it may have seemed like today was a relatively volatile session for the bond market. Weaker opening levels in Treasuries gave way to a mid-day rally that nearly got rates back to unchanged levels. But the afternoon saw steady selling that took bonds to their weakest levels of the session. In the bigger picture, this was a non-event as it leaves trading levels well within the prevailing range. Additionally, there were no compelling justifications for the move unless we want to continue to force the narrative of higher stocks prices leading to higher bond yields (where the correlation has been anything but reliable).

MBS Down an Eighth From Highs

Bonds have been selling slowly and steadily in the PM hours. While the pace of weakness isn't extreme, MBS are now down an eighth of a point from the highs of the day. Fortunately, prices were a bit lower during rate sheet print times--a fact that provides some insulation against reprice risk. Nonetheless, any time prices drop by an eighth or more during the day, there's at least some small risk of negative reprices from the most jumpy lenders.

MBs are currently down 3 ticks (.09) on the day and exactly an eighth from the highs.

10yr yields are up 2.2bps at 4.056, roughly matching their highs of the day.

Mortgage Rates Mostly Holding Long-Term Lows

It may not be as glamorous as being able to say are "in the 5s," but at 6.00%, today's MND rate index is a mere 0.01% higher than yesterday's multi-year low. For all practical purposes, this means the average borrower will see almost exactly the same rates as yesterday. In many cases, the quotes will be exactly the same.

There were no big ticket market movers on the econ calendar and no major headlines that caused any appreciable volatility in the bond market (bonds dictate mortgage rates). In general, the entire week is very quiet in terms of those potential market movers. Rates would need to see a shift in important economic reports before committing to their next major move.

Rates at 3-Year Lows Despite Market Volatility After Tariff Ruling

In addition to being shortened by Monday's holiday, this week's economic data didn't spark any big reactions in the bond market. Even after The Supreme Court ruled against certain recently-applied tariffs, rates managed to end the week right in line with the lowest levels in more than 3 years. The bond market dictates interest rates, and the tariff news was the biggest event of the week fo...
