Big Round Trip in Oil Prices and Bond Yields

Market Summary: Monday, March 9, 2026 - 4:10PM

There was no denying the spillover from oil price volatility to the bond market this morning, even if it took quite a lot of the former to move the latter. At its apex, the oil surge was the largest daily move on record at over $26/bbl (just over a 28% jump). This translated to a 10yr yield jump of almost 8bps to start the overnight session. But things were already reversing course quickly by the time European trading began. Then, by the start of U.S. trading, 10yr yields were already back below 4.18% and continued to fall back to unchanged levels at 4.13% by 2pm ET. The reversal almost perfectly traced the reversal in oil prices.

Market Movement Recap

- 08:19 AM Sharply weaker overnight with oil price spike. High yields of 4.21% in 10yr. Now up only 4.2bps at 4.171. MBS down just under a quarter point.
- 10:48 AM Off the weakest levels. MBS down an eighth and 10yr up 2.8bps at 4.157
- 01:55 PM MBS back to unchanged. 10yr also unchanged at 4.13
- 03:49 PM MBS up 6 ticks (.19) and 10yr down 3.5bps at 4.094

Following that newswire, bond yields have dropped 3.3bps to 4.096. Stocks have surged to completely erase today's losses. And oil prices have dropped well below Friday's closing levels.

MBS are now up 6 ticks (.19) on the day. Any lenders who don't reprice for the better this afternoon will presumably have a bit of insulation heading into tomorrow morning.

Mortgage Rates Finish Flat After Starting Higher

began the day at the highest levels in a month. The move up versus Friday was only moderate, but Friday's levels were already fairly close to early Feb's highs. Oil prices continue putting upward pressure on rates, but with several caveats.

It takes quite a big move in oil to motivate enough movement in the bond market to impact mortgage rates. With this morning's spike being the largest on record at the time, today certainly qualified. But over the course of the day, both oil and bonds reversed course, thus allowing the average lender to adjust rates back in line with Friday's latest levels.

Rates Rocked (Relatively) by Global Events

Last week, it seemed interest rates could do no wrong. Mortgage rates started at multi-year lows on Feb 23rd and proceeded to have a record-setting week (lowest weekly volatility for any week that began with multi-year lows). This week has been entirely different. A chart of 10yr Treasury yields allows us to see minute to minute changes in long-term rate momentum. In terms of mortgage r...
