Oil And Yields Move Back Up

Market Summary: Thursday, March 26, 2026 - 3:13PM

Bonds yields stayed lower than oil prices suggested yesterday afternoon. The same is true this morning, but oil prices have risen enough to lead bonds into weaker territory. Said differently, Iran war de-escalation sentiment is increasingly drying up, thus causing higher oil prices, higher bond yields, and lower stock prices. Additionally, the closer we get to the weekend without good news on negotiations, the more escalation risk will be priced-in by the market due to the Saturday deadline on Trump's ultimatum to reopen shipping channels lest they be taken by force.

Market Movement Recap

- 08:31 AM Weaker overnight and no reaction to data. MBS down a quarter point and 10yr up 4.4bps at 4.375
- 11:24 AM Down 10 ticks (.31) on the day and 5 ticks (.16) from AM highs. 10yr up 4.5bps at 4.376
- 12:34 PM Weakest levels. MBS down more than 3/8ths and 10yr up 7bps at 4.399
- 02:32 PM More selling. MBS down 5/8ths and 10yr up 8.6bps at 4.417

Negative Reprice Risk Increasing

MBS are now down 14 ticks (.44) on the day and roughly a quarter point from the AM highs. 10yr yields are up 7bps at 4.402.

There is no individual, precipitous market mover. Oil, stocks, and bonds have been trading Iran war escalation all morning.

Rates Leap to Another Multi-Month High

After a somewhat hopeful day on Wednesday, are back to their same old tricks on Thursday. The tricks in question involve following the broader market reaction to the Iran war which has caused significant and almost exclusive upward movement in for the entire month of March.

Average 30yr fixed rates have been at or near the highest levels in 7-8 months over the past 4 days. Today easily took them to slightly higher levels as global financial markets lost ground. The move lines up symmetrically with lower stock prices and higher oil prices.

Until there's meaningful and lasting de-escalation of the Iran war, the safest bet is for more volatility for interest rates.

March is Regime Change Month For Rates

While the word "regime" is often seen in a geopolitical context, it's also common in financial markets. With respect to rates, the most recent regime involved steady improvement starting in May 2025 and ending 3 weeks ago. Since then, a new regime has been taking over and it kicked into high gear this week. Under the previous regime, bonds (which dictate rates) were operating on the following p...
