Weaker Start on Renewed Bombing, But Still In The Range

Market Summary: Wednesday, June 3, 2026 - 1:53PM

Iran launched missiles at several U.S. allies yesterday afternoon and oil prices responded accordingly with a move back up to May 22nd levels. Treasury yields followed, but have generally been staying lower than the oil price correlation would suggest. 10yr yields continue holding a narrow range between 4.43 and 4.52. They're roughly 3.5bps higher to start the day at 4.485 and MBS are down a quarter point. ADP employment came out almost right on the screws and garnered no notable bond market response. At 10am ET, we'll get ISM Services, which is one of this week's few reports that might have enough of an impact to influence intraday bond market volatility that is otherwise taking most of its cues from the war.

Down More Than an Eighth From Highs

MBS are now down almost 3/8ths of a point on the day and just over an eighth from the most recent high around 10:30am. Lenders who priced at that time (or shortly thereafter) could be considering negative reprices, but those higher levels only showed up during a 15-20 minute window.

10yr yields are up to 4.497--the highs of the day.

Headlines contributing to the move:

Mortgage Rates Move Modestly Lower

It was an uneventful day for the bond market and, thus, . Unlike the average trading day of late, there were no conspicuous war-related headlines making for shocks to oil prices.

Since the start of the war, have had a strong correlation with oil prices due to inflation implications. That correlation was present today, but oil moved lower and higher well inside yesterday's range.

Top tier 30yr fixed rates fell from 6.60 to 6.57% for the average lender. This is very close to the lowest level in more than 2 weeks (6.56% seen last Friday).
