Thursday's Rally Sets Up For a Very Interesting Friday

Market Summary: Thursday, October 1, 2026 - 5:59PM

Of course we had to have a big, interesting move in the bond market on the day before an economic report also famous for causing big, interesting moves. On such occasions, if Friday delivers on "interesting" it will either negate today's bullishness or add to it in a way that makes today retroactively look like an obvious near-term top in rates. There's no way to know enough about today's rally to conclude that--let alone the unknowable results of the jobs report and the ensuing reaction. All we know: today was a win. If more wins follow, we can talk more about bigger picture supportive ceilings.

Bouncing Back Now

In the last alert: "the market reaction is still playing out."

As the "playing out" continues, we're now back to unchanged levels in MBS--several bps stronger than pre-data levels.

Same story in 10yr yields, now up less than 1bp on the day at 5.295.

The 5.34% technical level has brought in bond buyers twice now (once overnight at 3:30am ET and then again just after the 10am mini-sell-off).

Solid Mid-Day Recovery For Rates

It's a rarity these days, but actually moved lower today by more than a token amount. The average top-tier 30yr fixed rate fell to 7.54% from 7.60% yesterday.

There are multiple potential factors in play when it comes to explaining the underlying bond market rally, but none of them stand out as an obvious singular motivation. For those curious, the list (which has several esoteric factors that we won't be fully explaining here) includes, but is not limited to:

- traders covering bets on higher rates ahead of tomorrow's jobs report
- concerns over European bond market contagion focused on France and Italy
- reassuring comments from Fed speakers helping Fed rate expectations move lower
- technical buying opportunity when Treasury yields hit 5.34% (10yr)

A day like today invites consideration about bigger picture ceilings, but it will need to bring friends in order for that conversation to continue. We are bound to see periodic sighs of relief any time rates move higher as relentlessly as they have in the past month.

Tomorrow's jobs report is as likely as anything to set the tone for the rest of that conversation. If job growth is much stronger than expected, the conversation is over until further notice. If it's much weaker than expected, we'll talk.
